The book detailed her experiences as a governess and her subsequent marriage into the Trapp family, highlighting their musical pursuits and escape from Austria during the Nazi annexation. In the early 1950s, playwright Howard Lindsay and Russel Crouse adapted von Trapp's memoir into a stage musical, titled The Sound of Music. Composer Richard Rodgers and lyricist Oscar Hammerstein II later collaborated to refine the musical, resulting in a polished script that integrated memorable songs into the storyline. Their adaptation premiered on Broadway in 1959, marking the beginning of its lasting legacy.

Evolution of the Script: From Broadway to Hollywood

The original Broadway script underwent multiple revisions to suit different audiences and production formats. When it was adapted into the 1965 film directed by Robert Wise, the Sound of Music script was further altered, condensing scenes and adjusting dialogue to fit the cinematic format. The film's screenplay, written by Ernest Lehman, deviated from the stage version in several ways, including: - Streamlining dialogue for pacing - Altering or removing scenes deemed unnecessary for film - Emphasizing visual storytelling over textual exposition Despite these changes, the core narrative remained consistent, preserving the heart of the original script.
